TOWN TALK.

The buckwheat cake season is near at hand.
Should not Cheboygan have a reading room?
Additional local will be found on the first page.
A nice lot of ladies furs just opened at M. Wertheimer's.
P. M. Lathrop's show window presents a very fine appearance.
A large lot of new and stylish goods just received at M. Wertheimer's.
A large stock of flowers and plumes just received at M. Wertheimer's.
A good line of corsets, hoop skirts and bustles, just received at M. Wertheimer's.
Some needed work in the gutter is being done in front of Fexer's jewelry store.
Thompson Smith has already sent in two lumber camps and expects to put in another.
The Northern boats are running with great deal of regularity about these times.
Mr. John McKay returned home this morning after an absence of nearly a month out of the country.
Col. Duray was quite sick a few days the early part of the week, but is now about well again.
Many of the lumber vessels, especially the tender and aged craft, are being put into winter quarters.
The Marine City arrived early this morning with a full complement of freight and passengers.
Preaching at the Congregational Church Sunday morning by Rev. M. W. Strickland, of Prentissville, Pa.
The recent heavy rains have had the effect of producing exceedingly bad roads in all directions from town.
The sales of lands for delinquent taxes commenced at the court house on Monday. The attendance was not very large.
The Mission House at Mackinaw is closed for the season, and Capt. Franks and his family have gone to Detroit.
The article in another column concerning the late Albert Molitar is principally taken from the Alpena Pioneer.
We neglected to note last week that Morris Wertheimer had returned from the outside with a large stock of seasonable goods.
The new Methodist minister preached his first sermon to his present charge last Sabbath. A very favorable impression was produced.
Mr. Upham returned from Mackinaw Thursday, where he had been awaiting a boat a week, on which his family should take passage for home.
Young men who loaf on the street corners are losing much valuable time. It is only step by step with toilsome effort that great things are done.
Defective drainage caused a pond of water on Main street in front of Lynn's meat market on Wednesday almost deep enough for swimming purposes.
The sidewalk over the ravine near the residence of Chas. R. Smith should have a railing put up on it. In its present condition it is nothing less than dangerous.
A large force of men have been engaged during the week wheeling back and leveling the earth thrown out in deepening the channel by McArthur Smith & Co.'s dock.
Those who failed to see the eclipse last week Wednesday morning will not have another opportunity to see a recurrence of the same one for something over thirteen thousand years.
The steamer Van Raalte, which runs between Traverse City and Petoskey, extends her trip to Mackinaw every Saturday, and, returning, leaves Mackinaw Sunday morning. This is quite a convenience to those wishing to make railroad connections.
Three gentlemen representing a proposed Menominee settlement are said to be looking at the land along the line of the Grand Rapids and Indiana railroad. We have once before suggested the propriety of an effort being made to induce a settlement of them in this country.

THE INLAND NAVIGATION.

What Has Already Been Done—The Prospects for the Future.

Since the TRIBUNE first called the attention of the citizens of Cheboygan to the importance of completing the work already commenced for the opening of navigation into Burt and Crooked Lakes, and announced to them that an effort should be made to secure an appropriation of swamp lands from the state for this purpose, there has been a large amount of work done by a few of our citizens looking towards this end. We might here remark that the labor has not been as general as could be desired, it devolving almost entirely upon two or three; but this will no doubt be the case until there is some organization among our citizens to take these matters in charge.

To secure an appropriation the cost of the contemplated work must be known. This could only be ascertained by a survey of the rivers where the work was needed. Wm. McArthur, Merritt Chandler and the manager of the TRIBUNE volunteered to do this work, and accordingly spent several days up on the lakes and rivers engaged in this work. From this survey the exact locations where work was needed was found and accurate estimates of the cost thereof were made. The matter was now ready to be brought before the Board of Control. Here the want of organization was again badly felt. A committee must go to Lansing to bring the matter properly before the Board on the 29th ult. This difficulty was overcome by the parties making the survey consenting to act also in that capacity. They were joined, however, in Lansing by John McKay, Esq. Owing to a change in the running time of the G. R. and I. Railroad, two of the party failed to reach Lansing in time for the meeting of the Board; but they, being informed of the situation, adjourned over and held an extra session the following day, at which time the whole matter was laid before them by the committee and an appropriation asked for. After being discussed at some length by the Board the entire matter was referred to the Swamp Land Commissioner, with instructions to go over the ground, investigate the matter, and report at the next meeting of the Board.

This was all that could be reasonably asked. We have no fears but that a personal inspection of the situation of affairs will convince any one of the importance of the work. The final result will depend almost entirely upon the report of the Commissioner, as the Board will no doubt accept his views of the situation as a basis upon which to act. Nothing further can be done until the visit of the Commissioner, which will be some time during the month.

Knowing the interest that is felt by all in the success of this enterprise we have given a brief statement of what he has accomplished. In regard to the future prospects we can only say that the situation looks favorable. We have a good case, but the final result cannot be predicted until after the next meeting of the Board.

Legal Affairs.

Unity does not seem to dwell among the legal fraternity of Emmet county to any great extent. One of the principal sources of trouble seems to arise from the fact that one of the attorneys, who is also prosecuting attorney, has his office with the justice of the peace. In our limited knowledge of legal affairs, we have noticed that such a partnership rarely fails to lead to trouble. The state of affairs in Little Traverse shows no exception to the general rule. Whether this is the cause which leads to the effect in this case is hard to tell, but certain it is that the justice always makes his decision in accordance to the wishes of said attorney. According to the Charlevoix Sentinel, this attorney has a very limited knowledge of law, but has had very intimate acquaintance with nearly all the crimes in the dialogue. A case in point: A short time since a rising young lawyer of Petoskey had occasion to meet prosecuting attorney Ford, in legal contest, and before they decided the point in dispute a muscular engagement came out of it. The young lawyer, in the course of his argument told Ford that he (Ford) got his education in state prison, whereupon Ford told him he lied. This incensed the young sprig of the law to such a degree that he took firm hold of the prosecuting attorney's throttle valve and administered several well-directed cuffs in the vicinity of his ears, and the ex-convict took refuge in flight, and hid himself under the bed up stairs, and left Pailthorp and the court to decide the matter. The one-sided court fined Pailthorp $25 and costs, or 30 days in jail. Pailthorp promptly appealed the case.

The State Camp Meeting Ground.

The committee which were lately appointed by the Methodist Conference to locate a site for a state camp meeting ground, commenced the tour of the state last week. Some point along the line of the Grand Rapids and Indiana railroad seems to be the most probable selection. The committee visited Clam Lake and Petoskey Monday, and Traverse City Tuesday. Of course it is not yet decided which place will be selected, but as near as we could learn the chances seem to be in favor of Petoskey, where an exceedingly fine location has been offered them by the railroad company. The location at Traverse City is also said to be a beautiful one. With the navigation opened between this place and Petoskey through the inland lakes, there could not be a better place. Parties could reach the place from any direction by water, or come by rail as they choose. We are rather in hopes that Petoskey will be chosen, for it would doubtless be a great help to the development of this northern country. The large members which would annually be drawn this way, could not be otherwise than of great advantage to the country.

A fine assortment of ladies trimmed hats just received and will be sold cheap at M. Wertheimer's.

THE VILLAGE COUNCIL.

A Meeting Devoted Entirely to Business—Nothing Said About Steam Fire Engines.

The regular monthly meeting of the Village Council for October took place at the Council room last Monday evening, President Newton in the chair. Trustees Stevenson, Crumley, Kezar and Long answered to their names. The minutes of the last meeting were read and, with some minor corrections, approved.

PETITIONS.

The Recorder read a petition from Chas. L. DeCueninck asking that certain obstructions on Third and B streets, on the east side of the river, be removed.

On motion the petition was referred to the Street Committee.

Trustee Kezar asked that another member be added to that committee in place of Mr. Cueney, who has of late declined to act. Trustee Crumley was appointed to the vacancy.

Considerable informal talk was had regarding the obstructions referred to in the petition, which were fences across the streets, and the necessity and advisability of having them removed, but no definite conclusion was reached, and the matter left in the hands of the committee.

A petition was read from the residents of Pine street asking that a sidewalk be ordered on the north side of Pine street, west of Huron, to connect with sidewalks already made. The majority of the property owners on the street having signed the petition, it was, on motion of Trustee Kezar, allowed.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Village Marshal Mulvaugh submitted his report for the six months ending October 1st, which showed that he had received $30 in fines for violations of village ordinances, and $29.50 for licenses. The report was received and adopted.

The committee to whom was referred the petition of Chas. L. DeCueninck, asking that the village reimburse him for work done on the streets, reported, through Trustee Stevenson, that the petitioner had done considerable work in cleaning out and ditching the same through his property. The streets were traveled very little. The ditches drained his own land.

Trustee Long said that if Mr. DeCueninck was allowed pay by the village for doing work to improve his own property there were many others who would be just as much as entitled to recompense. Trustee Crumley did not know what street that was of public benefit that he had worked on much.

In answer to a question, the Street Commissioner stated that he had expended more than the petitioner's tax around his property. He had not as yet paid his tax.

President Newton remarked that he had done a great deal of this kind of work, and the village had never allowed him anything for it.

On motion of Trustee Long the petition was laid on the table.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Trustee Kezar stated that many complaints were made about a break in the sidewalk on Huron street, near the residence of Dr. Perrin. He also stated that Mr. Horn, the owner, said that it was laid out for a street but it had never been opened.

The Street Commissioner stated that Mr. Horn said that he would not build it.

Trustee Kezar thought that notice enough had been given, and that the Commissioner had better go on and build it and assess the cost against the property.

On motion of Trustee Long it was so ordered.
J. P. Sutton asked that the village build crosswalks between Sammons and Nelson streets. He stated that the streets were not opened beyond, but that Mr. Nelson was going to open the streets next spring. Referred to the Committee on Streets.

ACCOUNTS.

The following accounts were presented and allowed:

Wm. Mulvaugh, six months salary as Marshal, $50 00
W. H. Kezar, recording do., 62 00

The Recorder presented the bonds of Burns & Gallagher, liquor dealers, but the security not being deemed sufficient they were not allowed.

Trustee Long thought that Mr. Hoppe should secure another bondsman in place of John King.

On motion it was decided to hold an extra meeting of the Council on the 9th to allow the parties named to present satisfactory bonds.

On motion of Trustee Kezar the Recorder was instructed to draw an order in favor of W. S. Humphrey for $3.65 in payment of taxes wrongfully assessed against the pound. Adjourned.

Joslin Demands Justice.

It is well known in this village that D. R. Joslin, attorney and counselor-at-law, formerly of this place, but now of Petoskey, has naturally a very meek and lowly disposition, but it may not be as generally known that when the sleeping lion is fully aroused in his breast, that he will bear the lion in his den. The legal contests of that section usually take place in Little Traverse before a justice who is somewhat noted for his one-sidedness, from which Mr. Joslin is on, or at least this is Mr. Joslin's opinion. The other day he was engaged in a suit where the court decided every question against him. At last a point was reached where forbearance ceased to be a virtue. The meekness of Mr. Joslin's disposition left him, he forgot that he had just been elected to the honorable and lucrative position of church trustee. He drew his feet and legs in from the different parts of the room and arose, his majestic form towering over the court, and in his righteous indignation, his voice trembling with passion, and at the same time bringing his fist down upon the table in front of him with a sound of thunder, said: "May it please the court, I will have justice or blood!"

ALBERT MOLITAR.

An Energetic but Desperate Life—What He Accomplished and How.

The readers of the TRIBUNE are well acquainted with the feuds and quarrels which have rendered Presque Isle County notorious for years past, and remember well the announcement by telegraph a few weeks since that the central figure in all these disturbances, Albert Molitar, had been assassinated, together with one of his clerks. Molitar was not killed outright, but was desperately wounded. His wounds were pronounced fatal from the first, but his great energy and tenacity of life enabled him to battle against his fate for several weeks, but in vain. He has gone to meet with his reward. This is a sad termination of a very energetic life. The county of Presque Isle has lost the man who has done more for its settlement than all other men put together. At the same time he has sown the seeds of dissension and immorality among its inhabitants that it will take generations to wipe away.

He was indefatigable in inducing men to go to work and settle, to clear farms, cut wood, haul logs and open up and develop the country. He established the little village of Rogers City, plotted it, sold village lots, put up buildings, encouraged others to build, brought in a stock of goods, built a saw mill and rushed forward the material interests of the place in a manner almost incomprehensible to the interested observer. He labored incessantly. Night or day he might have been seen astride his old bay horse galloping from place to place giving directions here or shouting to men there.

But it seemed impossible for him to keep up friendly relations with his neighbors, his workmen or his family. There was always quarrels and turmoil. Molitar was the despot of his settlement. No monarchy could be more absolute than was his reign there. He named the candidates for office, managed the courts and dictated the executive officers. None of his under-strappers dared offend him. A notorious feud sprang up between his town and the neighboring one of Crawford's Quarry, which grew so violent that bloodshed was often threatened, especially at elections.

As the outside settlements grew they became impatient of his oppression. They claimed that he perpetrated base frauds on the ballot box, and at elections would come to town with their old flint-lock guns to shoot him. But he, like a true monarch, would rise to a magnificent rage and defy the host of his enemies, until they would stand at bay, and then melt away to their settlements.

Immigrants who came with money claimed that he cheated them of every dollar. No process of law could be served on him unless he saw fit to allow it, and then it was only to result in his favor. He married an excellent young lady in Detroit, who, after living with him a few years and suffering from continual brutality, got a bill of divorce on a charge of brutal treatment, when she could have accomplished the same by a criminal complaint. But she preferred to get away from him the easiest way possible.

Prosperity obtained by such means is never lasting, and his case was no exception. With the departure of his wife commenced his downfall. He sent to Germany for a lady acquaintance to come and keep house for him. She came, and under promise of marriage he seduced her. When her condition could no longer be kept secret, and her promise to him to redeem his promise became irksome to him he sent her to Detroit and left her alone in the streets of that city in winter half clad, penniless, and in a helpless condition. She was taken to the station house, where her sad story drew tears of sympathy from all who heard it, and secured her a comfortable resting place. She sued him for bastardy, and so terrible did the details of her sad story seem to be that the jury, without hardly leaving their seats, returned a verdict in her favor for the full amount.

Railroad Rumor.

Justice Sutton a day or two since received a letter from his brother, who resides in Jackson, which gives a little more favorable aspect to railroad prospects. We sincerely hope that this may be true.
